VALESKA SURATT

The Red Rose of the Great White Way to Be Seen at the Pastime Theater Today and Tomorrow.

Valeska Suratt and William E. Shay in the most unusual photoplay ever produced. Built around an epicenter of the life of La Valentine, a tragically beautiful but old in age. Her lover (portrayed by William E. Shay) becomes a thief that he may shower luxuries upon her. He is sentenced to prison and for five years can his heart out in solitude to emerge at the end of that time a sad-faced, gray-haired man, entirely cured of his mad infatuation. By accident Valentine sees him. Her old passion for him is revived. It means nothing to her that since his release from prison he has fallen in love and married a good woman. She tries to win him back. When her threats of exposing his past life. He will not yield and she prepares to carry out her threat. Then destiny takes a hand and with dramatic suddenness and power, the end comes.

See this wonderful picture at the Pastime theater today and tomorrow. Miss Suratt wears 10 different gowns during the play, costing over $100.00.

THE IMPERIAL LAUNDRY KNOWS
NO COMPETITOR

In Front Rank of City's Enterprises With a Payroll That Adds Much to Wealth of the Community.

Few citizens of Albuquerque realize that in the Imperial laundry the city has one of the most important industrial enterprises in the entire southwest, and that this establishment is recognized by all who are familiar with its work as one of the foremost laundries in the United States. But when one stops to consider that the Imperial has an out-of-town business extending all over the state of New Mexico and Arizona as far west as Needles, Calif., and that it gives employment to between seventy and eighty men and women with a payroll surpassed by no manufacturing enterprise in the city, it will be seen that here is an industry in the front rank of those which have helped to build Albuquerque up as New Mexico's chief city.

The prosperity of the Imperial laundry is founded upon just one thing—conscientious and efficient work. Founded fourteen years ago by its present proprietors, E. R. Edgar, and his brother, William L. Edgar, now of El Paso, the policy of the business has always been to give the best service in whatever work and to soon fully abreast of the times in installing new machinery, adopting new processes and doing everything possible to improve already up-to-date equipment and operating forces. The natural result of this policy has been that the Imperial is today without an equal in the laundry field in the entire southwest.

New Bleaching Process.

Two new processes have been instituted by the management of the Imperial in recent months which cannot fail to appeal to every man or woman who is given to outrunning laundry. They are the electric bleaching process and the cold-starch process.

Who is there that has not raved in despair when clothing came back from the laundry all set up and to seem fully washed? Under old methods there was but one way to bleach clothes in a laundry, and that was by the use of chlorine of lime. This powerful chemical made the goods white, but it also destroyed color and shortened the life of the garment.

The new electric bleaching process employed at the Imperial, the rights for which are controlled by Mr. Edgar, not only whitens the cloth as well or better than the old process, without the use of a drop of any chemical, but it also absolutely destroys and annihilates every germ that may lurk in the garment, and this is done by the simple method of running an electric current through plain salt and water. By this process the customer is assured that there is no chance of his clothing being eaten up by vermin when they are sent back from the laundry.

No More Cracked Collars.

Every man who wears collars has seen them come home from the laundry in such shape that when he went to put them on he had almost to tear the edges of the buttonholes, apart, even then crack when they were given the heat of a bed.

Scientific laundrymen discovered that this was due to the fact that cooled starch formed a thick glucose that made the linen to which it was applied brittle. Then it was found to be possible to get around this difficulty by using the starch cold, and the cold-starch process which is now used exclusively at the Imperial, came into existence. Result—a man can put on a collar now without being compelled to resort to prytany.

Up-to-date Superintendent.

There are only two of the multitude of strong points that might be enumerated to drive home the assertion that the Imperial is the best laundry in the southwest and has no superior in the country. Among others might be mentioned the fact that only the best quality of soap, soap recognized as the best laundry soap made, is used by this establishment, and the further fact that the method of laundering clothes cannot be surpassed. Not only are pains taken to see that there can be no possibility of shrinking, but a process is used which absolutely sterilizes the cloth and kills every germ that might be concealed in it.

In line with the Imperial policy that the best is none too good, the services of C. H. Campbell were recently secured as superintendent of the laundry. Mr. Campbell, originally a Texan, had had experience in some of the big laundries in Atlanta, Georgia, Montgomery, Alabama and other large cities of the southeast. He is recognized as an expert laundryman who knows every angle and turn of the business—a good man in charge of a good plant.

WE PRESENT A SHOWING OF DEPENDABLE FURS

Now is the time to make your Fur purchases as Furs are bound to advance. The scarcity of dyes in this country accounts for it. Fortunately we bought at the right time and are now showing a magnificent collection of dependable Furs at prices that probably cannot be duplicated again this season.

It is quite important that one should choose a reputable house for furs as for diamonds. Every piece of fur we handle is guaranteed to be exactly as represented. Our Fur Department is most inviting.

WE DIRECT YOUR ATTENTION TO THE PRE-HOLIDAY DISPLAY OF

RIBBON NOVELTIES

The Ribbon section is surely in holiday readiness with beautiful ribbons made up into new ideas. There are Fancy Work Bags, Pin Cushions, Boudoir Slippers and many other useful articles. Those wishing to make novelties for themselves will receive assistance in the selecting of ribbon and instruction in the making.

MANY NEW STYLES IN WOMEN'S HANDBAGS

There is variety enough in shapes to suit every fancy. The frames are beautiful—some of shell, gun metal, gilt and German silver. All are exquisitely finished and fitted.
